CoreBrand tracks the corporate brands of 800 companies across 49 industries

Corporate Branding Index®

- Each year we conduct 8,000 telephone interviews among business leaders to measure their perceptions of some of the world's best corporate brands.
- Respondents are business decision-makers from the top $20 \%$ of U.S. businesses.
- This senior business audience (VP level and above) represents the investment community, potential business partners and business customers across 49 key industries.
- 400 respondents rate each company per year; 800 companies are measured.
- We collect financial performance data and communications investment information to understand the support behind and impact of these brands.

The Brand Power Measurement

- Respondents are first asked to rate their Familiarity with a series of companies.
- Scores are a weighted average of the top three responses.
- Respondents who have a qualified level of Familiarity are then asked to rate their Favorability of those companies across 3 dimensions.
- Overall Reputation, Perception of Management and Investment Potential attributes provide insight to the source of favorable/unfavorable impressions.
- Scores are a weighted average of the top three responses to create a measure of Favorability.
- Familiarity and Favorability data are combined to create Brand Power, a single measure of the size and quality of a corporate brand.
- This number provides a single measure of the size of a company's audience and its disposition towards the company.

The Brand Power Rankings

- The Brand Power rankings are based on the 2010 top-scoring brands.
- The 2009 and 2007 rankings are included for comparison purposes.

* Highlighted area $=$ historic average

CoreBrand Equity is the \% of market capitalization impacted by the corporate brand. This all important percentage is highly valuable for understanding the health and vitality of your company's corporate brand as a dashboard measure. It is also helpful to compare the market cap of your company to your industry. What is presented in these pages is:

1. Brand equity as a \% of market cap for the top companies known as the CoreBrand 100
2. Brand equity as a \% of market cap for 500 companies known as the CoreBrand 500

Observations:

The impact of the corporate brand on market cap is at a low point of $5.3 \%$ for the average company in the CoreBrand 500. This means the trend focusing on financial fundamentals continues to grow in importance. In 2010, the corporate image continues to lessen in importance.

The CoreBrand 100 saw a decline in Brand Equity marking the largest drop in average brand equity for this group since the inception of tracking. The CoreBrand 500 is also at its lowest point since inception of tracking. It's also the largest drop for the 500, since 2007.
$14.0

Conversely, both the CoreBrand 500 and the CoreBrand 100 have seen two years of steady growth of CoreBrand Equity Value.

This growth of value is significant. The average company in the CoreBrand 100 grew brand equity value by $$ 1$ billion between 2009 to 2010 with the corporate brand in this group is worth over $$ 10$ billion! The average CoreBrand 500 company is worth $$ 2.2$ billion. Is it worth paying attention to your corporate brand?

The best news is that this represents two years of significant growth following two years of decline. This reflects the the rebound of the economic recovery but also the importance of financial fundaments to corporate brand value.

$$ 250$

For the past three years, $90 \%$ of the 500 's Brand Equity $$$ value has been comprised of the top 100 companies. This consolidation of brand equity value at the top is not particularly healthy.

2010 had $91 \%$ of the total dollar value contained within the CoreBrand 100. The other 400 companies shared the remaining $$ 91$ billion between themselves.

This also marks the second year of growth, which is replenishing most of the value lost in 2008. It will still take at least two more years of solid growth to reach the peak values we've seen back in 2006.
